HIGH TECH COMMUNICATIONS SERVICES

Founded in 2000, the company High Tech Communications Services is exclusively specialized in securing data and communications.

States, major corporations or innovative small and medium-sized companies are or will be the targets and victims of strategic information leaks. Digitization and the acceleration of information exchanges, together with the storage of this information, are now a vital issue and represent a strategic challenge. These threats are not however a foregone conclusion, as HTCS is dedicated to identifying these risks and providing its clients with reliable, customized solutions that are easy to implement.

Continually in pursuit of the most innovative solutions, we market a part of the results of the R&D carried out in partnership with leading French companies in our field. We distribute their telecommunication and IT security products.

Above all, we listen carefully to our customers in order to solve their security issues, providing customized solutions. Our approach puts humans at the heart of the security system, assisted by the most effective technology available that must be as transparent as possible for users.

To this end, HTCS favours a conceptual approach that enables it to build tailored, constantly updated solutions that are continually being improved in order to achieve an ever higher level of security.

Based on its capacity for scheduling and managing research and development projects, HTCS offers its clients three thematic approaches, which overlap and complement each other (see diagram).

Wherever possible, we favour products that have been audited, certified and approved by the ANSSI (French National Agency for the Security of Information Systems). Our company is committed to providing highly effective security solutions that are tailored to the threat. HTCS meets all requirements regarding confidentiality.
